LOFT LIVING VIKTORIA QUARTER

The former Schultheiss Brewery, located in the center of Berlin beside Viktoria Park, was built in the early years of the 20th century with impressive old factory buildings. This ancient industrial area was a perfect basis to develop a contemporary loft living atmosphere. The architects reorganized the ensemble with spacious loft apartments, shops and galleries carefully implemented in the historic buildings. New structures, like the 6-story "Atelierhaus" with luxurious maisonette apartments, were designed as a modern continuation of the historic place.
